CAUSE OF PALSE ACCUSATIONS. Gomip Linked His Name With That of Mrs. Zellner, Who Has Left Her Husband Under Peculiar Circumstanees - Another Man in the Case and He Is Wanted for Bigamy.

SLATINGTON, Pa., June 5.-Dr. Julius Eleberg committed suicide at a hotel here on Monday He was an educated German optician, 25 years old. He visited the slate regions professionally, and in his business met the young and handsome wife of aged Thomas Zellner. It was a report that linked Dr Elsberg's name with Mrs. Zellner that led to the suicide.

The friends of Dr. Eisberg twitted him that he loved another man's pretty wife. He vigorously denied this. Then when he heard that the Zeliner mansion had been obbed, that the young wife had disappeared and that detectives had been employed to shadow the wife and a patent medicine vender, also a friend of Dr. Elsberg, again protesting that he had nothing to do with such an unlooked-for denouement, Dr. Elsberg went to his room in the hotel, made his will, shot himself with a rife and then hanged himself. The will was:

Send all my property and money to my mother, n Warendorf, Westphalia, Germany. Please notify Therese Hagenman, 1329 Marshall street, and let Mr. Heintzleman send me there. This is all.

JULIUS ELSBARG.
S.-I hereby authorize Lawyer Sam Kiefler Saegersville, or Lawyer Lewis of Allentows, to

The doctor was of a nervous temperament. The hotel people say they never saw Mrs. Zeliner at the hotel but once, and that they knew nothing ill of either of them. Mrs. Zellner had her eyes examined, but her affections are now reported to have been centred alsowhere. Hence it is that the doctor's friends regret that he should have been twitted by persons who really meant to do him no harm. Some even went so far as to hint that he might be arrested. He became white and staggered back and said:

They cannot arrest me. I did nothing. I must not be disgraced."

While all this was going on here Detective Smith was employed to run down and arrest those who had taken things from the Zellner home during the absence of Mr. and Mrs. Zeilner on a shopping tour to Allentown. It was soon learned that the young wife of the well-to-do lumber dealer could not be found. She is vivacious, interesting and petite, with a wealth of dark hair. A few years ago, when Mr. Zellner lost his first wife, he fell in love with Lillie Kern, not quite 19 years of age. She was the daughter of a plain, honest slate cutter. Zellner was then 55 years old, but he succeeded in winning the young bride, after he had eent her to a local susiness college for two years. After the marriage they appeared very happy. The bride had horses and servants and jewels. She was fond of company, and finally she got to know Dr. Elsberg. Their and jewels. She was fond of company, and finally she got to know Dr. Elsberg. Their merry chaffing led village gossips to magnify matters, all of which came to the husband's ears. But he maintained faith and composure. Among other acquaintances of the young wife was Mr. A. E. Lomady, a travelling man. He was older than Dr. Elsberg. The two men got to know each other at the hotel and it is surmised that the doctor some time ago introduced his friend to Mrs. Zeliner. They became intimately acquainted, and it was not long before the same village gossips linked Lomady's name with that of the young wife, though nothing of incriminating nature was ever discovered.

Mr. Zeliner and his wife went to Allentown to do some shopping last Saturday. While there they became separated. They did not meet again at Allentown, but the story goes that the young wife returned to Slatington and after a stay here of a few hours left home with many of her belongings on an evening train. When her husband returned on Saturday night the wife had gone with considerable of the property her husband had given to her. Naturally, Mr. Zeliner became indignant, went to Allentown, hired a detective, and on Monday the young wife was found in a handsome travelling gown at the office of her attorney, Mr. De Wald. Later in the day Mr. Lomady was also found. He indignantly denied that he had eloped with or planned an elopement with the young woman. He asked that the detective accompany him to the law office of Mr. De Wald, which was done.

Shoully afterward Mr. Zeliner also arrived.

afterward Mr. Zellner also arrived shortly afterward Mr. Zeinfer also arrived there. The husband was much annoyed upon learning the facts, and declared that f his wife preferred Mr. Lomady she might go, but first of all he demanded the return of certain family jewels and a note for $5,000 he had given her. The wife promptly replied that she did not care to keep his gifts it he ever once regretted having given them to her several trunks were brought from the express office to the office of Sheriff Bitting. They were opened and the husband took what he claimed. The prosecutions were then dropped. he claimed. The proceeds.

Mrs. Zellner then left. Mr. Lomady also went away, saying he would attend to his business as usual. Mr. Zellner says he will institute suit for a divorce. The woman's trunks were to have been sent to Virginia. It is not yet known where the young wife went, but it is said that she had considerable money, as her husband was liberal and always treated her with consideration. Their friends much regret what has happened. Last week Mr. Zellner refused to pay a bill of $1,500 for lewelry which he says his wife bought without consulting him. Many of her gifts, however, Mrs Zellner was allowed to keep and take away. The friends of Lomidy say he had business in Reading, where he went on Monday afternoon, and that Mrs. Zellner, having friends there, also departed thence to take in Col. Cody's ent risioment.

Dr. Eisberg's body was sent to friends in Philadelphia.

Lomady, who was accused on Monday at Allentown of eloping with Mrs. Thomas Zellner, and was later allowed by her husband to go away when the family jewels which she had taken were returned, is wanted in this city for bixamy, desertion and nonsupport. The warrants were sworn out today by Mrs. J. W. Freeman, and the police are now trying to trace him. It is believed that he went to Richmond, Va. where Mrs.
Zellner went, and the police there have been notified to be on the lookout for him.

Lomady came to this city about seven years ago as a performer in a museum, making bracelets, brooches and similar things with wire. He settled here and opened a store, where he soid the things he made. After a year he met Mrs. Freeman, a handsome widow with property valued at $10,000 and induced her to marry him at Phillipsburg, N. J., on Oct. 29, 1894. He prevailed upon her to sell her property and with the money they went south and settled in Winston, N. C.
He got possession of the money, saying he was going to invest in lumber lands, and after a few years disappeared.

Mrs. Freeman returned here and tried to get trace of Lomady, but failed. She discovered that he had two other wives living and possibly more. Those she found were a woman in South Bend, Ind., who had some property, and the other in Adrian, Mich. The latter owned a livery stable,
After getting money from each he had left them. The South Bend woman bore him two children.

Mrs. Freeman resumed the name of her dead husband and has since waited to find

two children.

Mrs Freeman resumed the name of her dead husband and has since waited to find Lomady. When she read of his escapade in Allentown she at once swore out the warrants for him. She says she wants to see him punished for his misdeeds and believes that when his career becomes known more women will be found who are eager to have him put in a safe place.

STAGE DUKE TRIES SUICIDE. Actor Carney of "On the Quiet" a Prisoner I

New York Hospital - Took Morphine. Charles D. Carney, an actor, who took the tole of the Duke of Carbondale in the comedy "On the Quiet" at the Madison Square Theatre, is in the New York Hospital, a prisoner, charged with having attempted to end his life with morphine. He was taken to the hospital from the theatrical boarding house at 19 West Thirtieth street early yesterday morning and was not at first held as a prisoner because it was believed that he had merely taken an overdose of the drug. Later, however, so the police say, he made a confession to the hospital authorities and to a policeman which removed all doubt that he had tried to kill himself

Carney, whose stage name is Cranley Douglas, was at the theatre for rehearsal on Monday afternoon and his friends in the company, including Mr. Collier and W. G. Smith, the manager, say that he seemed in good spirits and gave no sign that he was in trouble or was contemplating suicide.

direct to his boarding house. Late in the fternoon he sent for Dr. Charles T. Jewett of 162 West Twenty-second street, and the doctor treated him for stomach trouble.

He did not appear at the theatre for the evening performance and an understudy played his part. After the performance, a messenger was sent to his house to find out what was the matter with the actor and he found Carney unconscious in bed, a bottle Dr. Jewett was sent for and worked over

Dr. Jewett was sent for and worked over him some time. Then the doctor decided that it was a case for the hospital and asked the police, over the telephone, to send an ambulance for a patient who had taken an overdose of morphine. Sergt. Conboy sent Policeman Shible to the house to see the doctor and learn more. The doctor assured shible that there was nothing to indicate that the man had contemplated suicide and that there was good reason to believe that it was an accident. Carney was taken to the hospital, therefore, as an ordinary patient. After he had been restored to consciousness, Carney, according to the police, told an attendant who questioned him that he had taken the morphine hoping that it would kill him. He said he did so because that afternoon he had received a cablegram telling him that his mother was dying in England. Carney's friends at the theatre don't believe that he tried to kill himself. One of them saw Carney at the hospital several times yesterday and says that the actor said nothing of the kind to him, although he did not question on that point.

Carney was well thought of by every one and had no troubles as far as his friends knew. He is said to have used morphine occasionally. What gives color to the suicide theory is that two weeks ago he went into Hegeman's drug store at Broadway and Thirtieth street, where he was well known, and asked the clerk how much morphine would kill a person. The clerk thought that he was joking, but told him that a grain would often do.

Carney is an Englishman. He came here the street he was and he was joking, but told him that a grain would often do.

Carney is an Englishman. He came here to go on the stege about five years ago, and he recently has played small parts. The hit he has inade as the English Duke, however, has lately made him very well known to theatrical folks and theatregoers.

GREEK PRIEST KILLS HIMSELF. 'Another Miserable" Was the Name He Begie tered Under at His Hetel.

A man who looked as if he had just finished a long journey walked into the Eastern Hotel at the foet of Whitehall street yesterday afternoon at 3:30 and wrote in a very poor hand what the clerk took to be "Arthur Misable." Manager Costello asked him to put down his residence also and he wrote what appears to be "Phillipes, Bol."

He got a room, ordered a luncheon that cost $1.50, ate it, paid for it, paid for his room and locked himsalf in it. Then he shot himself. Costello heard the shot, broke in the door, and found the man lying on the bed with blood flowing from his right side. Dr. Johnson, who came with the Hudson street hospital ambulance, found that the wound was a bad one in the abdomen and removed the man to the hospital in haste. This was at a clock, the man having been in the hotel only an hour and a half.

At the hospital the patient was told that he would probably die. He told the doctog that he was Michael Jivizoylon Karidis, 53 years old, a priest in the Church of Holy Trinity, New Orleans, and asked that a telegram be sent immediately to Marcus Popodets, a grocer in the French Market. The telegram was sent.

The hotel people locked at the register again and reconstructed "Arthur Misable" into "Another Miserable."

Policeman Walsh says that while Karidis was being carried to the ambulance he muttered something like: "It isn't my fault. The carpenters who repaired the church were the cause of it all. cost $1.50, ate it, paid for it, paid for his room

A CHURCH FOR ALL COLORS.

REV. MR. ASTWOOD HOPES TO INCLUDE MEGROES. FILIPINOS. CHINAMEN.

dians and Others-Incidentally, Negro Pastor Who Was Expelled for Alleged Micap-plication of Church Funds Is Suing Bishop

Derrick for Defamation of Character The Rev. H. C. C. Astwood, who was reently expelled from the Bridge Street African Methodist Episcopal Church, Brooklyn, said last night that he had begun a $25,000 suit against Bishop Derrick, for defamation of character. He declared that his dismissal had not been due to any "misapplication of funds," but to an old grudge. He is now organizing the Colored (not African) Protestant Episcopal Church, which will include Indians, Filipinos, Chinamen, and, in fact, all colored-skinned people, whether those skins be black, yellow, red or brown.

In the course of an interview with a SUN reporter Mr. Astwood said: "About six weeks ago the little Horton evangelist girl came to our church and created quite a spiritual sensation for a while, but when I found that it was more speculation than religion I said: 'That's irreverence to Him on high, and called quite. Bishop Derrick was up in arms. He ordered me to let the girl proceed and I did. though I re-fused to lend my presence to the meeting. The trouble was brewing. I found that four of the stewards of the church were unspiritual men and decided to expel them. This was scooptable to more than three-quarters of the congregation. The Sunday night that they were to be thrown out the Bishop sent word that if I expelled them he would expel me.

But as it was none of the Bishop's business. I went right on and expelled them.

"The following Thursday I was acqused of 'misapplying' church funds and then I myself was thrown out. Bishop Derrick had promised me till 4 o'clock to show why I should have a better hearing, but at 2 o'clock while my lawyer and I were still preparing an affidavit, he called the meeting and dismissed me.

affidavit, he called the meeting and dismissed me.

But the way of the transgressor is hard I am now bringing a suit against Bishop Derrick for $25,000 for defamation of character. The statement that I borrowed or misapplied any funds of the church is a lie. I did borrow $187 from Ms. Robinson himself and gave him my personal note for it, which he now holds, but this was not church money.

"I am now organizing a new church, which shall include not alone Africans, but all people who are colored. I am a broad-minded man, and I want a good, big field to work in Instead of calling it the African so-and-so, I have named it the Colored Protestant Episcopal Church of America. I am now the chief pastor. In September I shall call my brother clergy—and I have a large number with me already—to assemble for the purpose of electing an Archbishop."

This month thirty-three new wells are being drilled and twenty-six rigs are under way. A cheering development last month was the finding of the extension of the Nile Pool in the town of Wirt eight miles north of Bolivar, where five wells were drilled that started at seventy barrels a day and have settled to eighteen. The five wells are in a plot three acres in extent, while the new pool is described as a narrow, rich ribbon of oil sand 2,000 feet long and 500 feet wide.

The well located by Miss Maggie Gaule of Boston, a spiritualist, is now 3,200 feet deep and work has been stopped pending the arrival of a new cable with which the drill will be sent down to 3,600 feet.

REPORTED OFFER OF PORT ARTHUR AND DALNY FOR A COREAN PORT.

Aim Is to Secure an Ice-Free Harbor -- Masampo and Port Lazareff Mentioned -Accounts of a Famine in Siberia-Would Hamper Russia if Complications Come in the East.

VICTORIA, B. C., June 5 .- The steamer Empress of Japan brings copies of the Nagasaki press, which state that the Russian military authorities at Viadivostock have been advised officially from St. Petersburg that the Russian Government has made overtures to Japan offering the latter the ports of Dainy and Port Arthur in the event of Japan offering no opposition to the acquisition by Russia of an "ice-free port" in Corea. Masampo and Port Lazarest are mentioned. Building operations at Port Arthur and Dainy have been suspended by the Russian Government which is presumably awaiting Japan's reply. That Japan is preparing for a Russian move in Corea would seem to be evidenced by the fact that the army reserve is called up.

News is given by the Asahi that the Boxers and mounted bandits are again in southern Manchuria. Their total strength is esti-mated at 7,000. The Russians are working hard to suppress them, but so far they do not appear to have been very successful. An outbreak was threatened at Koking and a Russian force was sent there from Moukden The outlaws in those districts are exchanging communications freely and a general out-break in various districts is threatened. The Asahi expresses doubt whether the withdrawal of the foreign forces from Chili may not be entirely misinterpreted by the Chinese. Disavowing all desire to treat China harshly the Asaki nevertheless regards her as the most difficult country in the world to deal with and the Chinese are the most unmanageable nation in existence. Lenient treatment is misconstrued by them and from harsh treatment they run away. News received from Siberia gives the most distressing accounts of the great famine which has overtaken the greater part of Western and Central Siberia. Even Eastern Siberia, litherto the most prosperous part of the counry, has been overtaken by famine. In this case he famine is the consequence of too much rain. The new railway has ruined large numbers of inhabitants of the Siberian tract gaging in transport. Some of the newspapers declare that Russia would be seriously hampered if complications were to come in China, as the Siberian grain reserves, which were relied upon to feed the army in Manchuria, are practically exhausted.

VON WALDERSEE CRITICISED. sed of Acting on Palse Information Given by His Spies. VICTORIA, B. C., June 5 .- Speaking of the onduct of affairs in Chill Province the Hong Kong Dails Press, received by the Empress of Japan to-day, says

"We fear that the Commander-in-Chief (Von Waldersee) personally cannot be ex-onersted from blame, and that he has permitted himself to be befooled in trusting to a set of spies, evidently in close touch with the enemy. Were the result merely personal and confined to the safety of his staff the result would be still disastrous, but its effects have been deeper and more dangerous. The commander, under the evil inspiration of his intelligence department, has been led into making attacks on innocent places and innocent people. That the guilty should suffer punishment is right and proper, and we certainly do not feel disposed to utter any mealy-mouthed protests against what we conceived to be the truest humanity in the end. It becomes, however, a direct source of danger when, acting on false information; an army becomes a source of dread to the well disposed and innocent. Had our information come from but one source, or could t be traced to any one spring. We should hesitate to give it publicity, but as it comes from two perfectly separate and independent sources, both of whom we are individually bound to respect, we feel we are acting in the interests of every one in giving it publicity."

The altar and cruciffx were screened, but there was no interruption to the hearing of confessions and the performance of baptisms.

The commission attempted to ascertain the advisability of uniting the provinces of Manila and Morony, but found there several hot-headed factions who argued the matter pro and con. Morong exemplifies the usual local pride of the Filipinos in demanding civil individuality.
